242nd AAA Group

HEADQUARTERS 242D AAA GROUP
APO 46

30 January 1953

A Message from the Commanding Officer

I am grateful for this opportunity to express my appreciation to the officers and men of the 242nd Group and its supporting units for the fine job you are doing.

In future years when you have occasion to turn through the pages of this book, I am confident that you will recall many pleasant memories of the events in which we participated and of the friendships we were privileged to enjoy. If the turbulence of this day has been replaced with a more tranquil existence, you can take pride that you and your associates did your part well.

Congratulations to each of you on the spirit you displayed which has helped this Group so much in carrying out its mission.

Like any large organization, the Army has, in the past and will in the future call many of us to new locations. However, I feel that a small part of the 242d will always be with each of us wherever we go.

Robert H. Kessler
ROBERT H. KESSLER
Colonel, U.S. Army
Commanding

COLONEL ROBERT H. KESSLER

Colonel Robert H. Kessler was born at Fort Monroe, Virginia, and is a second-generation Army man, his father having spent thirty-nine years in the Service. Colonel Kessler was graduated from West Point in 1936, and for the next two years served in the Coast Artillery, after which he spent two years with the 92nd Coast Artillery on Corregidor in the Philippines. From 1940 to 1941 he was with the 76th Coast Artillery at Fort Bragg. During the war, he was at Aberdeen Proving Grounds for two years, going overseas in February 1945 as commander of Antiaircraft battalions, during which period he served in New Guinea, the Philippines, and on Okinawa. Colonel Kessler was at the University of Pennsylvania from 1947 to 1949, when he was awarded a Master of Science Degree in Electrical Engineering. From 1949 to 1952 he was with the AA & GM branch of the TAS at Fort Bliss. He came to Europe in August 1952, when he commanded the 46th AAA AW Battalion at Hanau. He became Commanding Officer of the 242nd AAA Group on November 3 of that same year.

History of the 242nd AAA Group

The 242nd AAA Group descended from the 242nd CAC Regiment (HD), which had its origin in 1739 as the Third and Fourth Regiments of the Connecticut Militia. These two organizations were drawn from existing companies in the towns of New London, Norwich, and Lyme (Third Regiment), and Fairfield, Stratford, Danbury, and Newtown (Fourth Regiment). The Third and Fourth Regiments continued in the colonial service until 1776, when they became part of the State Militia of Connecticut.

A reorganization of the Connecticut National Guard took place in 1865, and the companies formerly belonging to the Fourth Regiment of Militia were incorporated into the Eighth Regiment Infantry, which was redesignated the Fourth Regiment Infantry in 1871. The Third Regiment Infantry continued in state service until mustered into federal service as the Third Connecticut Volunteer Infantry on July 2 1898, at Niantic. The Regiment had no foreign service in the Spanish-American War and was mustered out at Savannah, Georgia, on March 20 1899. The Fourth Regiment was not in federal service during this conflict.

On October 7 1903, the Third and Fourth Regiments were consolidated and continued in service as the Third Regiment until December 14 1907, when it became the Coast Artillery, Connecticut National Guard.

On April 3 1917, the Second and Fourth Companies CAC were mustered into federal service; the remaining units were federalized July 25 1917. A number of these units were redesignated at this time and some became the 56th Coast Artillery Regiments, while others were assigned to the coast defence of Long Island Sound. The 56th, which later became the 242nd Coast Artillery, had considerable overseas service.

The five companies which became the 56th arrived in France at Brest on April 5 1918, and proceeded to Clermont-Ferrand, where they remained till July 28. The 56th was ordered to the Aisne and on August 5 1918 was assigned to the American First Army. Only the First Battalion entered the corps area and participated in the Aisne-Marne operations in August 1918. The First Battalion remained in the defensive sector and was joined by the Second and Third Battalions the same month. The Regiment remained assembled in the sector until the Oise-Aisne operation on August 18. It served as a unit of the American forces until September 7 when the 56th was transferred to the Meuse, where it supported the Third and Fourth Corps of the American First Army during the Meuse-Argonne operation until the armistice on November 11 1918.

Pursuant to the President's executive order, all elements of the 242nd Coast Artillery (HD) were ordered into active service on September 16 1940. The Regiment left Bridgeport, Connecticut, after one week of processing, and arrived at Fisher Island, N.Y., on September 23 to take up mobilization assignment at Fort H. G. Wright in the harbor defence of Long Island Sound. The Third Battalion remained at Fort Wright to form AAA Group HD LIS, the Second Battalion garrisoned Fort Terry on Plum Island, and the First Battalion manned the armament of Fort Michie, on Gull Island. The outbreak of World War II found the Regiment well trained and prepared to form numerous cadres for the rapidly expanding army. The Battalion moved to Camp Pendleton, Va., and after intensive training departed for the South Pacific Theater, arriving at New Caledonia on June 6 1943. The Battalion served in a harbor-defence assignment until April 1 1945, when the unit embarked for the Ryukyu Islands, landing at Okinawa on April 20 1945. On VJ-day the Battalion was relieved of its field artillery mission and assigned the job of establishing a camp to receive recovered Allied military personnel. The Battalion processed 23,000 recovered prisoners.

On January 10 1944, all the men and officers of the 242nd Coast Artillery Regiment (HD) were transferred to the 11th Coast Artillery Regiment (HD). The men and officers of the 11th CA Regiment were transferred to the 242nd by the same order. Thus a complete change-over of officers and men was effected. On March 12 1944, the 11th CA (HD), complete, was ordered to Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. The 11th CA Regiment was inactivated less than a month later.

Concurrently, the 660th Field Artillery Battalion was activated with the personnel of the 11th CA Regiment's First Battalion, and the 661st Field Artillery Battalion with personnel of the 11th's Second Battalion. The 660th and 661st went through basic unit training at Fort Leonard Wood, and advanced training at Camp Cruber, Oklahoma. They were moved from there to the European Theater in 1944, where they took part in the Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns, after which they were deactivated.

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the 242nd AAA Group was activated at Bridgeport, Connecticut, on December 23 1946, and ordered into active service on April 4 1951, reporting to Camp Edwards, Massachusetts, attached to 56th Brigade. During its initial training period, the Group received commendations by General Mark Clark and General Willis D. Crittenger. The Group was assigned five Battalions at Camp Edwards and supervised them until it departed for overseas service early in 1952. Upon arriving in Germany, it was attached to the 34th Brigade.

Headquarters 242nd AAA Group

Lieutenant Colonel Matthew J. McGuire was born in Brooklyn, and attended high school and the Bridgeport Engineering Institute in Connecticut.

He went into the National Guard in 1926, and received his commission as Second Lieutenant in July 1930. He went on active duty as a Captain in 1941. As a Lieutenant Colonel he commanded the 282nd Coast Artillery Battalion, and was released from service in April of 1946. Recalled in May 1951, he was sent to Europe in February of the following year. During the war Colonel McGuire served in the Ryukyus campaign, and in the Japanese occupation. After the end of hostilities, he operated the Okinawa Recovered Personnel camp for General Stilwell, returning to civilian life in Bridgeport until recalled. His decorations include the Legion of Merit, Asiatic Pacific Service, American Service, World War II, Victory, American Defence Service, and German Occupation awards.

History of the 27th AAA AW Battalion (MBL)

The 27th AAA AW Battalion (MBL) was activated at Camp Stewart, Georgia, on April 1 1951, by authority of General Order Number 7, Headquarters Third Army Antiaircraft Artillery Training Center, Camp Stewart, Georgia, dated March 26 1951. Upon activation, the Battalion was attached to the 47th AAA Brigade and the 3rd AAA Group, respectively, at Camp Stewart.

Cadre personnel for the new unit, in compliance with the activation order, were obtained from Third Army resources. The 80th Airborne AAA AW Battalion (SMBL) and the 98th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, both stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, supplied the cadre personnel. Seven reserve captains and first lieutenants were recalled to fill vacancies in the unit. The majority of second lieutenants were current reserve officer graduates from ROTC schools.

Filler personnel were received from Replacement Training Centers at Fort Bragg, North Carolina; Fort Benning, Georgia; and Fort Jackson, South Carolina. The Battalion reached its authorized strength in officers and men on May 26 1951.

Since there were no recruits assigned to the unit, individual advance training was begun as soon as the full complement of officers and men had been assigned. This training was completed on September 1 1951. Basic unit training was given the Army Field Forces Test during the period January 15-19 1952. The average score for the test was 83.45, and the unit was accordingly certified to the Department of the Army as being combat-trained.

During its period of training, the Battalion received recognition by being awarded the Clare H. Armstrong Award for proficiency in gunnery in the record firing practice September 5-7 1951; the Camp Stewart Post Safety Plaque for August and September 1951; and the Camp Stewart Post Best Mess Plaque for August 1951. During the period from June to December 1951, the Battalion achieved the highest reenlistment rate in the Third Army area, and it received eight superior ratings, six excellent ratings, and no unsatisfactory ratings at the Third Army Command Inspection in December 1951.

Three weeks after the Field Forces Test, the Battalion conducted, on its own initiative, a complete combat readiness display for the Third Army Antiaircraft Training Center. For this display the entire TO & E equipment, organizational equipment, and individual equipment of the Battalion was displayed on the Camp Stewart parade ground. This impressive display was favorably commented on.

On February 15 1952, the Battalion was alerted for overseas movement to Germany. The decision was made to ship the unit direct from Camp Stewart, Georgia, to the port of embarkation. As a result, the unit was staged for overseas movement at Camp Stewart and left there on April 1 1952. The Battalion arrived at Hampton Roads, Virginia, on April 2 1952, and moved directly from the train to the USAT Henry Taylor.

On arrival at Bremerhaven, the Battalion was assigned to the 34th AAA Brigade and further assigned to the 242nd AAA Group.

The Battalion was permanently assigned to a location west of the Rhine, but was sent to Mitten-

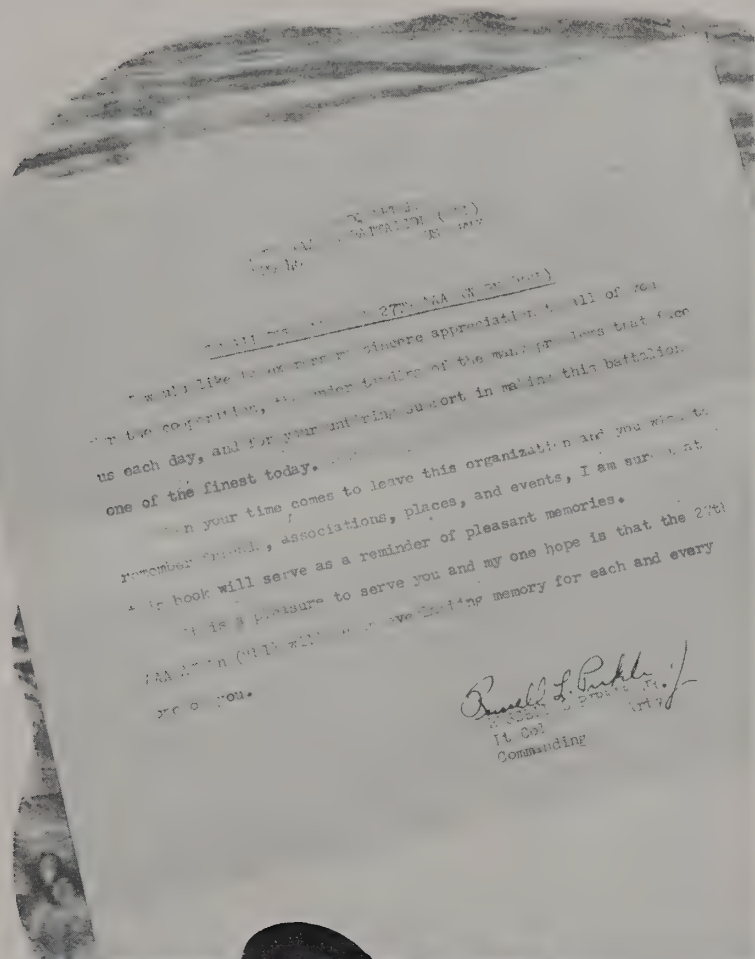

Arms inspection

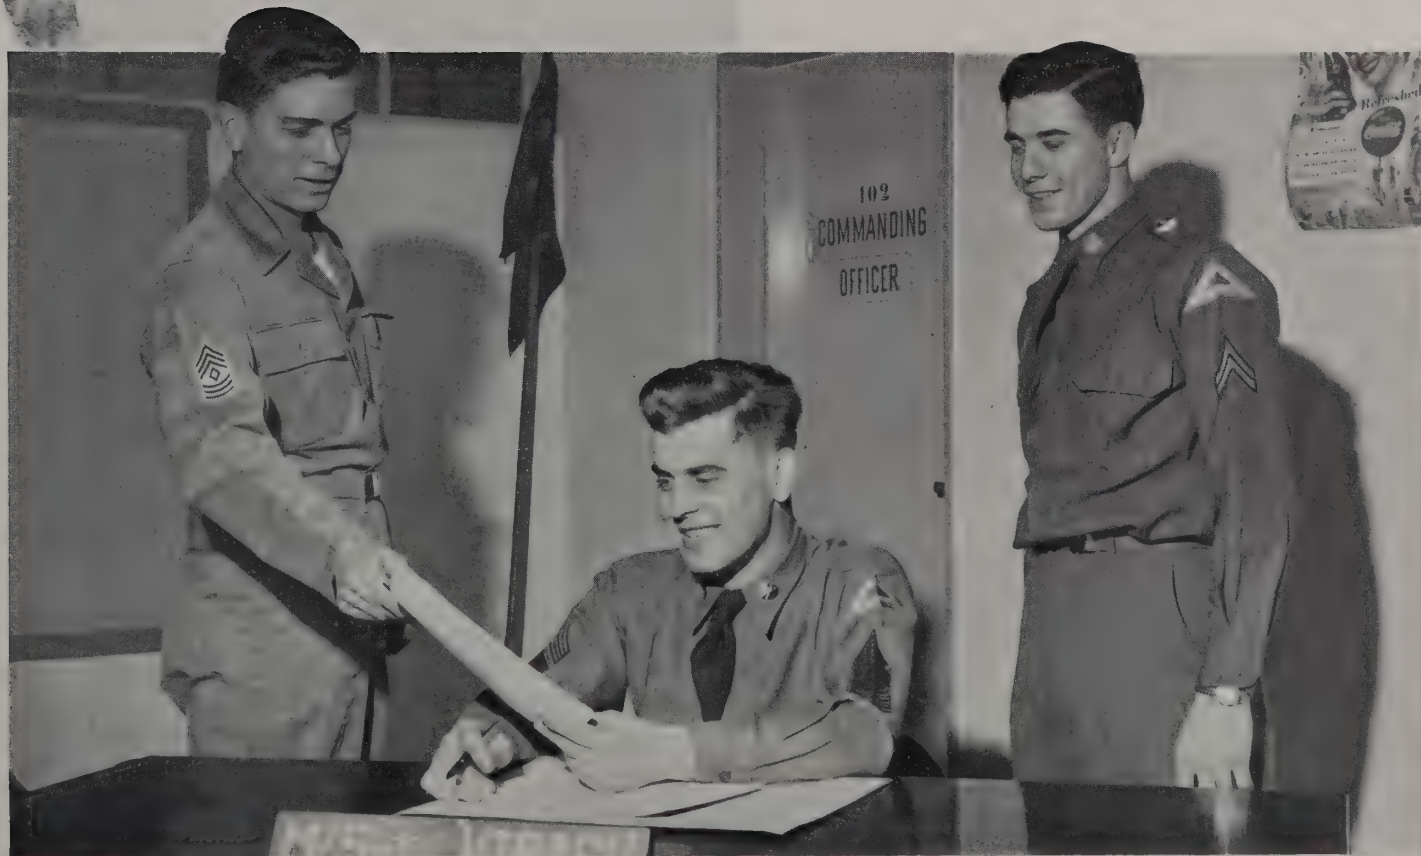

wald, in the Bavarian Alps, to await the arrival of its organizational equipment. It was during this period that the unit was integrated. The Battalion sent and received men to and from practically all other AAA units in the Seventh Army.

On December 2 1952, the Battalion was moved to its permanent location at Vogelweh Cantonment, Kaiserslautern.

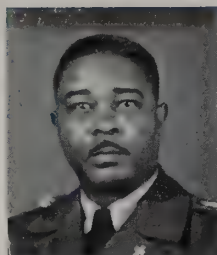

Lieutenant Colonel Russell L. Pirkle, Jr., was born in Hoschton, Georgia. He received a B.S. in General Engineering from Georgia School of Technology, and taught at Berry College and at Stanton Military Academy. Colonel Pirkle has been in the Army since July 1 1939, spending four years in Panama during the war. He became Commander of the 27th AAA Battalion, the third Battalion he has activated and trained, in April 1951.

History of the 45th AAA Gun Battalion

The 45th Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion is now in its newly finished home at Vogelweh Con-tonment, Western Area Command, Kaiserslautern, Germany. It stands alert and prepared, together with its sister-units, as a formidable contribution to the defense of freedom.

The 45th is a descendant of the 6th Regiment of Artillery, which was designated parent unit on March 8 1898. The old Battalion was activated at Fort McHenry, Maryland, March 23 1898. When the 6th Regiment was broken up, the old elements of the Battalion were redesignated as separate companies of Artillery on February 2 1901. It was reconstituted as the 6th Coast Artillery Regiment on June 30 1924. One of its units, "B" Battery, was committed as a separate Battery of Artillery in World War I, and participated in five campaigns :
Lorraine, Ile de France, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne. Today "B" Battery of the 45th carries five silver battle bands on its guidon staff in recognition of these battles. The 3rd Battalion was activated at Fort Winfield Scott, California, June 2 1941, and was redesignated the 173rd Coast Artillery Battalion (HD) October 18 1944.

The 173rd Coast Artillery Battalion disbanded on September 15 1945 at Fort Miley, California. In what was to be its present structure, the former Batteries of the 3rd Battalion, with those from the 6th Coast Artillery Regiment, were reorganized and reconstituted as the 45th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion (inactive) on June 28 1950. The Battalion was redesignated as the 45th AAA Gun Battalion on March 9 1951, and was activated at Fort Bliss, Texas, on March 14 1951.

The Battalion was ordered to overseas duty by the Department of the Army on December 11 1951, departed the ZI via New Orleans Port of Embarcation, and arrived as a Battalion at Bremerhaven, Germany, on March 6 1952, destined to be assigned to 7th Army, attached to the 242nd AAA Group, a unit of the 34th AAA Brigade.

The Battalion crest is derived from the parent organization, the 3rd Battalion of the 6th Coast Artillery Regiment, therefore the coat of arms of the parent organization has been placed within a border for difference. The Field of the Shield consists of the flag of the Philippine insurgents

(except the stars and sun of Katipunan, which are omitted) and shows the first campaign of the regiment. The two fleurs-de-lis denote the war history of the two organizations that saw service in France. The crest is taken from that of the Coast Defense of San Francisco, where the old Regiment and the majority of its companies were stationed since 1901. The role of Peace Makers, as our crest indicates, is expressible only in a sense as is understood by peace-loving nations. We are ready to strike anytime, anywhere, when the enemies of our free way of life threaten that way of life.

As a Battalion we are a newcomer in the ranks of combat Battalions ; however, we are ready and equipped to write a glorious page in service of our country. This would be only a dream were it not for the superior quality of the officers and men who make up the ranks of this Battalion.

The Battalion is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel B. M. Warfield, who took command from Lieutenant Colonel Henry F. Pinkvoss. Prior to assuming command, Colonel Warfield was Executive Officer of the 32nd AAA Brigade, England.

Since the Battalion's arrival in Europe, it has served in three duty stations. Arriving at Bremer-haven, Germany, on March 6 1952, the 45th was sent to Mittenwald, Bavaria, for temporary staging and tactical reorganization. Its Bavarian Kaserne (Yaeger) exemplified the beauty of the surroundings typical of that section. This beauty was constantly enjoyed by all personnel as operational-organization was accomplished.

While at Mittenwald, the Battalion traveled to Putlos Firing Range, Oldenburg-Holstein, Germany, in May 1952, and heard its guns roar for the first time in Europe. Because of its location, considerable distances were involved to accomplish firing at specific ranges ; however, quite extreme mileages were computed without a serious accident or fatality. The Battalion has compiled an outstanding Safety Record, with over 1,800,000 accumulative miles covered without a serious accident or injury.
Constant application of proper maintenance safe-driving practises have been a contributing factor to this record. Individual pride of vehicles, constructive competition, plus conscientious application have made this possible.

The Battalion has participated in several TFX's and phases of the Army Training and Performance Tests. From the field, the Battalion was assigned temporarily to Sullivan Barracks, Mannheim, Germany, and remained there awaiting its final move to Vogelweh Cantonment, Western Area Command, Kaiserslautern, Germany, French Zone.

The Battalion has fired both AAA and Field Artillery courses in Germany, together with its organic small arms. A constantly accelerated training program is stressed with a pride in being prepared to accomplish any mission it may be assigned.

Our Medical section, ever conscious of its role in upholding the high traditions of the Medical Service, is constantly on the alert for the best in service and comfort to the men of this Battalion. The mission of this Medical section is in Peace or War threefold: (1) To keep the manpower of this Battalion at the peak of efficiency, (2) the best possible care for the sick and injured, and (3) service above and beyond the call of duty.

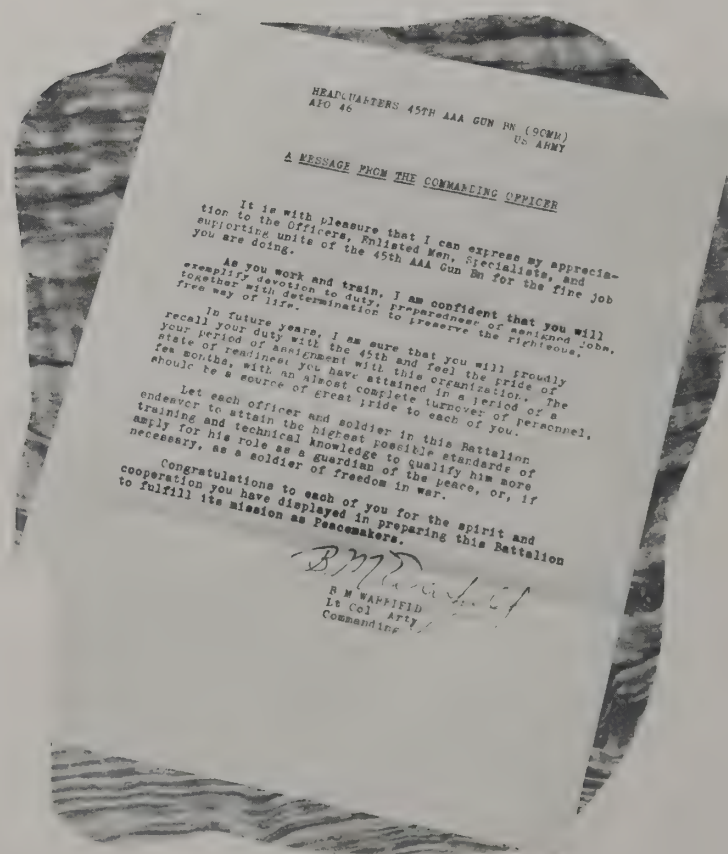

This Battalion does not minimize the role of the members of this section. These men are carefully selected and thoroughly trained, and, whether for peace or for war, can be counted upon to fulfill their role to the fullest. The personal interest of the officers with whom they serve assure them every opportunity to feel that they are a necessary part of this great team.

As a formidably trained unit, composed of highly qualified officers and EM, whose backgrounds display years of Army service, together with the high standards of training and preparedness which are maintained, the personnel of the 45th AAA Gun Battalion humbly dedicate themselves to the protection of all free men, reflected in the motto of the Battalion crest "Peace Makers", as peace with all its implications is first and foremost in the hearts of free men. Church attendance of all faiths is manifest throughout the Battalion. For well do they know that a nation without God is one lacking all the essentials of leadership. We pledge ourselves to duty, freedom, and God, with the hope that we shall ever be a credit to the great soldiers who have lived, served, and died to protect free people.

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery

Lieutenant Colonel B. M. Warfield was born in Manila, in the Philippines. He finished West Point in the class of 1936, and earned an LL.B. Degree in 1949 from the University of California's School of Jurisprudence. He was sent to Europe in 1950, and became Commander of the 45th AAA Battalion in July 1952. He holds the Legion of Merit, Purple Heart, and Bronze Star awards.

History of the 62nd AAA AW Battalion (SP)

The 62nd Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion (Self-Propelled) is descended from units whose origins spring from the early days of American history. As early as 1789, Battery "B", then known as Captain Callender Irvine's Company, 2nd Regiment of Artillerists and Engineers, was organized. Battery "C" stems from 2nd Lieutenant William Smith's Detachment, Captain John Goodall's Company, 2nd Regiment of Artillerists and Engineers, which was organized in 1821. "D" Battery's history began in 1847, as Battery "L", 3rd Artillery Regiment. Battery "A", also organized in 1847, was known as Battery "N", 7th Artillery Regiment.

History indicates an active participation by units of the Battalion in the various conflicts engaged in by the United States from the wars with the Seminoles to the second World War. Battle honors have been awarded to units of the Battalion for engagements in the war of 1812, the Indian Wars, the Mexican Campaigns, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, and in World War II.

The modern history of the Battalion began on September 14 1922, when the 62nd Coast Artillery Regiment, consisting of two Battalions, was activated. The Regiment underwent a period of training, increasing its experience and efficiency until the middle of the 1930s, when it was considered to be one of the finest antiaircraft units in the country. The Second Battalion of the Regiment was one of the first in the Army to be given the outstanding mobile weapons of the period, the 37 mm Automatic Weapons, Mobile.

By this time the Regiment had become one of the Army's show units. During the next few years, the Regiment spent a good deal of time demonstrating its mobile effectiveness on the east and south coasts, instructing the ROTC and National Guard camps, and perfecting antiaircraft firing to the highest degree.

The heavy mobilization and preparation for the oncoming World War drew a cadre of twenty-six officers and six hundred enlisted men from the Regiment in February 1941. A period of training and maneuvers followed, to qualify selectee replacements for the personnel of the cadres. On July 7 1942 the Regiment departed for Camp Kilmer, N.J., for transference overseas. Following a training period in the United Kingdom, the Regiment was sent to North Africa, where it was assigned to the 34th Coast Artillery Brigade (Antiaircraft) under the U.S. Fifth Army. While in this theater the Regiment participated in the Tunisia-French Morocco campaign during November 1942. From July 9 to August 17 1943, the First Battalion participated in the Sicily campaign, during which time it was attached to Seventh Army. The First Battalion at this time also engaged in the Tunisian campaign.

On March 24 1944, the First Battalion was reorganized and redesignated the 62nd Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion. In July of that year the 62nd AAA Gun Battalion sailed for Italy, and from there advanced into Southern France, moving on from there to participate in the Central Europe campaign. This was followed by participation in the Rhineland campaign, and another battle star was added to the Battalion's ETO ribbon. Battle honors were also won by the Battalion in the Ardennes-Alsace campaign. In addition to the Battalion's campaign stars, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery was awarded a battle star for participation in the Rome-Arno campaign.

The 62nd Gun Battalion remained in Germany until its return to the United States on March 2 1946. The outfit was deactivated the day after its arrival in New York. The 62nd AAA Gun Battalion was later redesignated the 62nd Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion (Self-Propelled) and reactivated in January 1949 at Fort Bliss, Texas. At this time it was assigned to Fourth Army.

In November of 1949, the Battalion moved by rail to its first assignment as an organic antiaircraft battalion, in the 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas. An intensive advanced training program was initiated there. Frequent maneuvers soon acquainted both officers and enlisted men with a relatively new role: employment of antiaircraft weapons in an armored division.

During 1950, approximately twenty per cent of the personnel of the unit were lost in transfers to forces in Korea. In November the Battalion was alerted for movement to the European Command, and in January of 1951 was moved by rail to Fort Dix, N.J. From there the unit moved on January 27 1951 to Brooklyn Army Base and the same day embarked on the USNS M. L. Hersey. The Battalion arrived at Bremerhaven on February 7 1951, and after an overnight train ride detrained at Ludwigsburg, near Stuttgart.

Since its arrival in Europe, the 62nd AAA AW Bn (SP) has continued to live up to its high reputation. The ratings given the Battalion as the results of tests and inspections have always placed the organization in the top categories. The many letters of commendation and appreciation received by Battalion representatives from other units indicate the spirit of willingness for hard work and cooperation among its members, and testify to the organization's reputation as one of the best artillery outfits in USAREUR.

Lieutenant Colonel Charlie E. Meadows was born in Perry, Georgia. He studied electrical engineering in Pittsburgh, business administration at Malden College, and law at Northeastern. He served in the Marines from 1929 to 1933, and became an Army officer in 1941. His past assignments include those of G-4 for EUCOM and Secretary of the USFA General Staff. Since August 1951 he has commanded the 62nd AAA Battalion.

History of the 67th AAA Gun Battalion

When the Department of the Army on January 31 1949 directed that the 67th AAA Gun Battalion be activated, another "old soldier" was revived and given the opportunity to serve its country again.

The history of the 67th Battalion goes back to May 21 1918, when the 67th Regiment, Coast Artillery, was organized as a unit of the American Expeditionary Forces at Fort Winfield Scott, California. After a period of training, the unit sailed for France, arriving there on September 3 1918, shortly before the cessation of hostilities. After a winter in France, the Regiment was returned to the United States in February 1919 and was demobilized at the Presidio of San Francisco on April 23 of that year.

A significant date in the history of the 67th was January 22 1926, for two reasons. First, it marked the day that the War Department reconstituted the 67th Coast Artillery Regiment (Antiaircraft) as a regular Army unit; this meant that even though the unit was placed on the inactive list at that time, its revival as an active unit at some later date was pretty well assured. Second, the "Antiaircraft" that appeared in the official designation of the unit was important; this was the keynote which dictated the future of the 67th: it was to pioneer in the then new and undeveloped field of Artillery—anti-aircraft.

It was not until July 1 1940 that the First Battalion of the 67th CA Regiment was activated at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and the unit became a going concern once again. By February 1941, the Regiment had reached full strength and underwent an extensive training program at Fort Bragg to prepare it for the hard road that lay ahead.

The Regiment sailed from New York for North Africa on January 14 1943, and upon landing at its destination started along the long road to "Hell and Glory". The 67th moved successively from North Africa to Italy, into Southern France, and on into Germany. During these two years the unit participated in six major campaigns and was awarded the French Croix de Guerre, with palm, for action in the French Expeditionary Corps sector during the battle to open the road to Rome. The citation reads, in part, "It is particularly noted in the French Expeditionary Corps sector that they helped in opening the road to Rome. Always in complete cooperation with the United French, the 67th Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion played a large part towards the success of our Armies by destroying or damaging thirty-three enemy aircraft."

After the war, on November 25 1945, the 67th was inactivated at Camp Shanks, New York, and again—this time for a few years only—its battle flags and streamers were placed in mothballs while the Army went through a period of readjustment to meet peacetime requirements.

The 67th had the mission of supporting the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile Branch of the Artillery School from date of reactivation February 1, 1949 until their departure for overseas assignment, which was August 15, 1951. Officers attending the school for the purpose of learning the technique of Antiaircraft Artillery firing received practical training on 90mm. gun equipment and the latest fire-control equipment furnished by the Battalion. Demonstrational target-practice firings for school officers and visiting dignitaries, participation in Guards of Honor and other special ceremonies, in addition to the normal duties of garrison life, kept the days, weeks and months of the 67th filled with activity.

Since the reactivation of the 67th in February 1949, the present members of the organization have accepted the challenge of maintaining the fine record and upholding the tradition established by their predecessors in two major wars. By the beginning of 1953, the 67th AAA Gun Battalion was still in possession of the Best Shooting award from the 34th AAA Brigade.

Emblazoned across the coat of arms of the 67th are the words "Memor et Fidelis," which means "Mindful and Faithful". In peace and war, since 1918, the members of the 67th AAA Gun Battalion have followed this motto in an exemplary manner.

Lieutenant Colonel John P. Tawes was born in Crisfield, Maryland. He is a graduate of the University of Delaware, where he took a liberal arts course. He first entered the Service in 1940, and has been Commander of the 67th since July 15 1951.

History of the 95th AAA Gun Battalion

The 95th AAA Gun Battalion is a Regular Army Unit organized during World War II. The parent unit was constituted as the 503rd Coast Artillery Regiment (Anti-Aircraft) (Mobile), AUS, on March 28 1942, and activated at Fort Lewis, Washington on April 7 1942. The first battalion of the parent unit was redesignated as the 95th AAA Gun Battalion on February 8 1944 and organized under T/O & E 44-115. It operated under this designation until inactivated on December 24 1944 at Camp Maxey, Texas.

The 95th AAA Gun Battalion served in Alaska for 24 months from June 1942 to June 1944 and is authorized one Battle Honor for participation in the Aleutian Islands Campaign during this period of foreign service.

The coat of arms of the 95th AAA Gun Battalion consists of a shield with jaguar passant in the upper left corner indicating descent from the 503rd CA Regiment, from whose shield the jaguar is taken, and a seal, couchant, commemorative of service in the Aleutian Islands.

The 95th AAA Gun Battalion, Regular Army, was reactivated on January 15 1949 at Fort Bliss, Texas. The mission assigned at this time was the organization and training of a 90 mm. Gun Battalion Mobile, to the point where it could perform any of the duties normal to an organization of its type.

Cadre and filler personnel were received from April 1949 through June 1949. ATP Training was commenced on June 11 1949 and completed during October 1949. Army Field Force Tests were taken during this period and successfully completed.

Upon completion, the organization prepared for movement to Fort Lewis, Washington, departing Fort Bliss, Texas, on November 26 1949 and arriving at its new station on November 29 1949.

Immediately prior to its departure from Fort Bliss the majority of personnel were separated from the service. As a result the Battalion left Fort Bliss with slightly more than 50 per cent of its authorized strength.

During the early part of 1950 fillers were received and training of the unit was once more undertaken.

The firing phase of the training was completed at Yakima Firing Center during May 1950. The organization continued with this mission until the Korean conflict began, at which time it was once more reduced in strength by the transfer of most of its personnel and equipment to various alerted antiaircraft units.

On September 12 1950 the mission of the organization was altered to include refresher training for Enlisted Reserve Corps personnel recalled to active duty. From this date through December 29 1950, over 3,000 such personnel were given refresher training by a relatively small cadre of personnel from this Battalion.

During this same period 180 recruits were given basic training prior to assignment to other organizations within the 31st AAA Brigade.

Just prior to the end of 1950 filler personnel for the unit began to arrive so that training as a unit could once more be undertaken.

Basic Individual Training under the ATP was continued during January and completed on 10 February 1951. Advanced individual training was commenced February 12 1951 with a total of 733 men assigned as of February 28 1951.

Training of the organization continued during March and April. During April, 169 recruits were received; training for these men, on a recruit detachment basis, was carried on until they had completed six weeks of individual basic training. At this time they were integrated into the various batteries where their training continued. The addition of these men raised the Battalion strength, at the end of April, to 898 enlisted.

On April 27 1951 the organization was alerted for shipment to EUROM. Preparation of personnel for overseas movement was implemented immediately and plans for the movement were developed.

Training under the ATP was continued until completion of the 28-week training cycle on July 15 1951. As part of this training the organization participated in an ADX in the vicinity of Seattle, Washington, from June 10 1951 to June 24 1951. The firing phase of the Field Forces Test was successfully completed July 1 1951 with a score of 72. The tactical and Detection Phase was successfully completed on July 12 1951 with a score of 86.6.

Upon completion of the ATP the unit processed all T/O & E equipment for overseas shipment. The main body of troops departed from Fort Lewis, Washington on August 16 1951, arriving in EUCOM on September 9 1951.

Upon arrival of the Battalion in EUCOM it was assigned to Seventh Army and attached to 34th AAA Brigade. Permanent station for the Battalion was at Camp Y-79 (later designated as Coleman Barracks), Mannheim/Sandhofen, Germany. The balance of 1951 was spent in receiving equipment and retraining of personnel of the Battalion.

The Battalion participated in several CPX's and FTX's in Germany during the course of 1952. The annual ATT was administered to the Battalion in March 1952.

Two AAA service practises were participated in at the Putlos Firing Range during March and June 1952. During October the Battalion conducted an FA service practise at Grafenwohr Training Area.

On February 7 1952 Lieutenant Colonel Paul E. Pigue assumed command of the Battalion following the relief of Lieutenant Colonel Lyle C. Daugherty.

Lieutenant Colonel Paul E. Pigue was born in Nashville, Tennessee, and is a graduate of West Point. He has been Commander of the 95th AAA Battalion since February 1952.
